WGO is an independent non-governmental organisation concerned with environmental conservation and environmentally related livelihood and economic affairs. In order to raise local business’ awareness on the global environmental challenges addressed in UNSDG, WGO first initiated a programme of GOALS in 2013, the objectives of the programme were to recognize the companies who had made efforts to implement environmental protection measures in their office, to educate the Hong Kong businesses on environmental protection and sustainability, so as to facilitate them to improve their office environment and to help them evaluate their environmental footprint. Chinlink performed satisfactorily in Energy savings, Waste reduction and Paper/Printing saving categories, and this is the first time of Chinlink being awarded.

During the past years, Chinlink and its subsidiaries (collectively the “Group”) has been devoted in implementing green office measures in operations to reduce carbon emission. Started from fundamental actions such as double sided printing, paper reusing and recycling, unnecessary electronic equipment shuts down when leaving office, use of Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) certified paper on corporate publications, etc., the Group also extended the effort in arousing the staff's awareness on environmental protection in the ways of incorporating green elements in various social service activities, inviting staff to participate in green workshops and sharing green ideas in corporate newsletters and posters, etc.

Mr. Siu Wai Yip, Executive Director of Chinlink, commented, "We are truly honoured that Chinlink is awarded the two meaningful labels - 'Green Office' Label and 'Better World Company' Label, in recognising the Group's long-term commitment and effort on environmental conservation. As a socially responsible company, Chinlink believes that every company has a part to play in the society, especially in this exigently infected moment of our earth. The Group will undoubtedly continue to implement green measures which comply with the Green Office General Principle in the future, contributing the environment."
